

April 5, 2006

Walmart is too big already. I refuse to shop there, no matter how cheap I could get something. There's nothing in there that's not made in China. I don't support a business that is taking away American workers opportunities in such magnitude. Going Global is not the way to go and we will regret not having recognized that in time. We're creating US dependence on all these cheep-labor countries.

Adding banking would make it undefeatable, undestructible, create a THIRD Power. They would have so much data on everything and everybody that we need to stop them now. Banks should not want them either, i.e. who needs that kind of competition.

Claudia